45 Local Scouts Honored at Awards Ceremony at NJC

By VICTOR WILLIAMS
Scouting Correspondent

About 45 scouts from four local troops were honored Tuesday night in ceremonies at Navarro Junior College in the first city-wide "Court of Honor" in memory.

Scoutmasters presenting the awards to members of their own troops were Roy Ragsdale, Troop 246; David Hull, 240; Calvin Myers, 258; and Robert Mitchell, 243.

Professional Scouter Andy Marlow administered the oath to the two youths receiving the highest award of scouting, the Eagle Scout award. They were Victor Williams, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald O. Williams of 1700 North 25th St. in Corsicana; and Brad Myers, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Myers of 303 Fairmount in Corsicana.

Williams is a member of Troop 246, and Myers is a member of Troop 258.

A good-sized crowd watched as the scouts appeared to receive promotions and merit badges.

Scouts promoted, with their new ranks, included:

TENDERFOOT: Richard Schriefer, Randy Dunson, Steve Shimoner, Donald Palmer, Dennis Palmer, Carl High, Kal Silverberg;

FIRST CLASS: Matt Anderson, Frank Mitchell, Larry Carter, David Ragsdale, Joey Kormos;

STAR SCOUTS: Duane Burnett, Roger Mills, Steve Ragsdale, Ned Balcom;

LIFE SCOUTS: Jeff Gee, Jon Lahmon, and Gary Harris.

In addition, 67 merit badges were awarded to scouts who had completed studies and projects in such areas as canoeing, conservation, swimming, rifle and shotgun, bicycling, hiking, cooking, water skiing and personal fitness.

Among those receiving the most merit badges were Ned Balcom, with eight: in firemanship, canoeing, hiking, cycling, rifle and shotgun, camping, cooking, and safety; and Jeff Gee, with seven: in nature, conservation, safety, first aid, hiking, swimming, and firemanship.

Others receiving awards were Jon Lahmon and Gary Harris, each with six; Matt Anderson, four; Roger Mills, Steve Ragsdale, Douglas Samuels and Steve Myers, three; Brad Myers, Duane Burnett, Kent Basinger, Kelly Myers, Keith Bahart, Chris Stewart, Mark McAnally and Anthony Kormos, two apiece; and, with one badge each, Donnie Palmeri, Larry Carter, Michael Chilbert, Bobby Bergey, John Ivey, Bill Landy and Tom Edling.

Rutherford Stough, commissioner of activities, assisted with the Eagles Awards ceremony, talking about the uniqueness and the significance of it, and Dr. Speier talked about struggles of achieving the award.

The Rev. Kenneth Haley of First Christian Church delivered the Eagle Scout Charge.

In a meeting of the District Scouters Monday night at Medical Arts Clinic, Robert Mitchell of Troop 243 and Roy Ragsdale of Troop 246 gave a "wood badge" presentation explaining their week-long summer project at Philmont Scout Ranch near Cimarron, N.M.

Circle Ten Council recently ruled that a leader is not considered fully trained until he has been through the wood badge program, which involves activities that cover the entire 400-plus pages of the Scout Manual, including camping, citizenship, first aid, leadership and service.

Dr. James Speier, chairman of the Advancement and Health and Safety Committees, presided, due to the absence of Dr. Robert Bone, chairman of the District Committee.

In discussing changes being made in the scouting program, Dr. Speier said "skill awards are basically things boys need to get through life."

He noted that the number of merit badges required for the rank of Eagle Scout has been increased from 21 to 24, with badges in emergency preparedness, world citizenship and sports three of the major additions.

Under the new program, it doesn't take "half muscle and half brains" to get in. "You can build your mountain your own way," he said.

In reorganization action, Dr. Bone was re-named chairman.

Maurice Kirkpatrick was named vice-chairman, and Jack Smith was re-named as a commissioner. The appointments were carried out on the recommendation of the nominating committee report presented by Don Bowen.

Attending his first meeting as a neighborhood commissioner was Al Swift.

Andy Marlow, said the Optimists Club has decided to sponsor a scout troop and has already picked a scoutmaster and a troop committee. Marlow said three more troops are being organized.

It was announced Tuesday that another troop, formerly active, is in the process of re-building—Troop 240 at Westminster Presbyterian Church under the leadership of David Hull.

There will be a scouting banquet Nov. 6 at the Student Union Building of Navarro Junior College, according to Marlow. It will be for Eagle scouts, religious awards recipients, adult scouters and their wives, he said. Tickets will cost $2.75 apiece.

Bill Casey of Branniff Airlines in Dallas, Council Ten commissioner, will speak.

The 14 adult scouters who attended the session went away with the new scouting slogan on their lips: "Scouting today is a lot more than you think."

Charter Election Withdrawn

Nov. 14 Council Vacancy Vote Okayed

By SAM PENDERGRAST
Editor of The Sun

Mayor Sue Youngblood and City Commissioners P.D. Fullwood and Bob Scott in a 32-minute special meeting Tuesday afternoon voted unanimously to pass on second and final reading an ordinance setting up a special election Nov. 14 to fill the vacancy created by the recent resignation of Commissioner John Carlock.

After discussion among the commissioners and from the floor, they also unanimously voted not to consider the second and final reading of another ordinance which would have called for a charter amendment election on the same day.

A $4.65 million bond election to finance a number of city improvements is expected to be approved Tuesday for the same Nov. 14 date.

Commissioner H.R. Stroube was not present, but the presence of the Mayor and two commissioners constituted a quorum.

Fullwood made the motion to approve the vacancy election, and Scott seconded.

Immediately afterward, Fullwood suggested that he would withdraw his original motion of last week for approval of the charter amendment election, noting that he had been in favor of an election because "I always like looking for an excuse to save the City money" and observing that he had hoped to save the cost of another election to consider the charter questions.

"But it seems some of the citizenry wants a charter study made," he said. Volunteering to move to withdraw the motion for the charter election, he asked to hear from "others who have felt the public pulse', adding, "If it jeopardizes the bond issue, I'd say strike it."

City Manager Jack Russell said a number of people had told him they would like to see "single-member districts" and were worried that a vote on the charter questions now would postpone any elections on other charter questions, such as the "single-member" representation.

Commission candidates are presently voted on "at large" by voters throughout the city.

City Attorney Don Pevehouse confirmed that a two-year period is required between one successful charter amendment and any other attempted amendment. He later said, in answer to an inquiry from Scott, that it would be impossible to revise the proposed amendments approved on first reading last week, since only four days remain in the allowable period before approval of an election and it would be impossible to get the paper work and commission action done in that time.

Russell noted that single-member representation would require division of the population along strict numerical lines, which would take some time.

Later in the meeting, Mayor Youngblood reminded the commission that she had gone on record (Editor's Note: in an interview in The Daily Sun during her successful campaign for the post of mayor) as favoring an opportunity for the citizens to vote on the question of single-member districts. She indicated she would not like to see that opportunity barred by action now on the present charter amendment questions.

After discussion among the commissioners and from visitors August Wendorf and Chamber of Commerce President Ned Polk, Scott seconded Fullwood's motion to withdraw consideration of the charter amendment election ordinance, and the motion passed unanimously.

Wendorf, frequent commission meeting visitor in recent weeks who said he represents the views of a number of citizens, praised Fullwood for offering to withdraw his motion to consider the charter revision amendments which would have, if passed by the electorate, turned over to the city manager the right to make a number of appointments now delegated to the mayor's office.

But Wendorf expressed concern over the fact that he had understood the recent "town hall" meeting was set up to consider three matters—the filling of the Carlock vacancy, the submission of bond election proposals and amendments for revision of the charter. "But they closed up shop and went home and people were not given the right to speak on the amendments," he said.

Polk later said it was not his understanding that the Sept. 28 meeting had been intended to take up anything but the city improvements requiring a possible bond election, and he suggested another city-wide public meeting "to see what the public feeling is—maybe take the whole charter revision (question) to the people."

Polk noted there would have to be a regular city election in April anyway and suggested that might be the time to consider charter revision.

Wendorf recalled that he had been an observer of local city politics for approximately 50 years and had participated in three charter amendments, but all the questions had been tied together in the past. "You uncorked that bottle, and you're not going to be able to cork it up," he said, apparently in reference to the fact that voters will be allowed to vote individually on the seven areas proposed for bonding, thereby approving any, all or none of the measures.

In answer to Wendorf's charge that the people were not allowed to discuss the amendments, Mayor Youngblood later said, "Before the first reading on any ordinance, we have a public hearing." She recalled that the Commission had such a public hearing before last week's consideration of the two proposed ordinances and that Wendorf was the only citizen who showed up to discuss the amendments to the charter.

"We found out this (the charter amendment question) was not the feeling of the majority," she noted. "We found (that) people want to study it some more, and I don't think you can tie the two together (the charter amendment and the proposed bond election).

Scott said, "I'd like to see more people on the Commission, but, Mr. Wendorf, you're the only person I've heard express that opinion." Scott added that he would like to take city appointments "out of politics."

BOND INTERESTS TALKED

A. Hardy Eubanks, III, assistant vice-president of First Southwest Company, investment banking firm advising the Commission on bonding matters, attended the meeting and said he was in town on other matters and wondered if anyone had any questions about potential bonding.

Scott asked about possible interest rates for any bonds that may be approved by the electorate, and Eubanks said he expects interest rates to be about 5.5 per cent for tax bonds on a 25-year retirement basis and about 6 to 6.25 per cent on revenue bonds for the same period.

But Eubanks added that such estimated rates are based on "today's market" and added, "unfortunately, we expect rates to go up after the election. We figure the President will institute stronger controls once he gets past the election.".

ASKS STATE AMENDMENTS STUDY

Fullwood urged local citizens to analyze our local elections in November and urged the same kind of careful study of the 14 state amendments "that need a lot of attention" on the state-wide general election ballots in November.

He also said he'd like to see better representation from young married people in City affairs and urged that voters remember that "bond money is authorized—not spent," and the City can proceed to get as many dollars as possible to match the local funds. "Don't let (a distaste for) federal funds jeopardize what we do locally," he asked.

WILL SEEK HOUSTON SCHOOL

Wendorf, after approving deletion of consideration of the charter amendment ordinance, said he intends to do his "dead-level best" to get them (the Board of Trustees of the Public Schools) to give the Sam Houston School grounds to the City for possible use as temporary City Hall quarters.

Nicholson Qualified, Rules Court

AUSTIN (AP) — The 3rd Court of Civil Appeals held today that H. D. Nicholson qualified as a candidate for district court judge in Navarro County despite his having had no law office for the past six years.

The case, entitled "State of Texas on the relation of William J. McKie vs. Robert Bullock, secretary of state", sought to prevent Nicholson's name from appearing on the November ballot in Navarro County.

The trial court ruled for Nicholson, and the appellate court upheld that decision.

First information in Corsicana of the finding in Nicholson's favor came from Judge-apparent Nicholson, who called The Daily Sun from Dallas to report that the ruling had been released. He said the ruling of the court was unanimous.

McKie contended that the Texas Constitution requires that a candidate for district court judge has to have practiced law for the four years preceding the election.

The appellate court said Nicholson practiced law from 1959 to 1966 as assistant district attorney in Dallas and as first assistant U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of Texas.

In 1966, Nicholson left full-time practice to help his father establish "a scientific hog raising operation." But part of this help consisted of giving his father legal advice. Also, Nicholson gave legal advice to some 30 other persons outside his family during this period, and the appeals court held this was sufficient to qualify him under the constitutional requirement.

13th District Judge James C. Sewell, who was defeated by Nicholson in the Democratic Primary this Spring, told The Daily Sun at presstime he had not been informed of the decision yet and had no comment at this time.

Housing Authority To Request Action

By ROB MECKEL
Sun Staff Writer

Local attorney Jack Smith was sworn in as a new member of the Board of Directors of the Housing Authority of the City of Corsicana Tuesday afternoon in a monthly meeting in which the board voted unanimously to request immediately permission from the Corsicana City Commission to build 65 housing units and to request an additional 135 units later.

C.L. Redus was elected chairman to replace Robert M. (Bob) Scott, III, whose term expired with the fiscal year this month. Smith, who was appointed to the board to replace Joe L. Burnett, was appointed vice-chairman.

Redus said "a little bird" told him recently that the board should get application in now, preferably before election day, requesting additional housing units from the Department of Housing and Urban Development. He added that he had been advised that he might request as many as 300 additional units, but somebody else suggested he think in terms of 200 units.

Board Attorney Robert Gladney pointed out that getting the request in before the election is a good idea because "usually there is lots of money in government...anytime around election time.

"If we could get more housing, I would recommend highly that we request it," Redus said. He pointed out that a lot of people would move away from bad housing situations where they still have to use "surface toilets."

Housing Authority Director Ed Blackburn noted that the City of Corsicana at one time approved 175 units for construction but only 110 units were constructed in the recently completed housing project for elderly. Thus, he said, the Authority does not need to ask permission for 65 units but would need to ask the City for authorization to build anything in addition to that amount.

After considerable discussion, Smith moved that the board at this time request of HUD the 65 units already authorized by the City and further proceed to hire an architect to go before the City requesting an additional 135 units and, upon completion of all requirements, that the 135-unit request be submitted to the proper authority. The motion passed.

Two Board members suggested that the architectural firm which worked on the 110-unit project for elderly not be hired, and Blackburn said he would seek someone else to do the job.

In other board business, board member Willard Summerall's motion, to authorize Blackburn to sign necessary papers to permit the sale of $1,880,000 worth of Housing Authority bonds passed unanimously.

Blackburn said the bonds will be issued at 5¼ per cent.

Another item involved a resident of the East Side Apartment units who had been served an eviction notice and was presenting her case to the board. She was sent the notice after the Housing director determined that she was not within the low income guidelines at the time she applied for public housing. She told the board that her application was based on projected income because she knew her income would be reduced within a short time and the yearly average would be within guidelines. The board decided to take the matter under consideration, let the board's attorney study the matter, and reach a decision at the next meeting.

Another agenda item was a request by the Child Evangelism Fellowship, Inc., of Navarro County to allow the teaching of Bible verses to children of East Side Apartments at a day care center there in the afternoons.

Blackburn said the classes are taught by Mrs. Paul Curry on a non-denominational basis. The board granted renewal of the contract.

The board also approved renewal of a day care center contract at a building at East Side Apartments rented at $1 per year.

Board members also adopted a new procurement policy presented by Blackburn which he said was recommended by HUD. The old policy required the director to advertise for bids on purchases of items over $500 while the new policy does not require bids unless an item costs over $2,500. After the board voted its approval, Redus told Blackburn he should use his purchasing powers wisely now that he can make purchases up to $2,500 without bids.

Mayor To Seek Night Meetings

Tuesday's meeting of the City Commission was a special meeting, and the commissioners were barred by law from taking action on any other measures than the two proposed ordinances discussed in the separate story.

But Mayor Sue Youngblood closed the meeting by asking commissioners to study the possibility of having future commission meetings at night.

"I'm going to propose night meetings at the regular meeting Tuesday," she said, recalling that she had promised citizens at the Sept. 28 "town hall" meeting to bring the matter up for consideration.

The feeling in the past has been that day-time meetings are more convenient for the commissioners and that not many citizens attend meetings anyway, City Hall sources have noted.

★★★ Aunt Louise ★★★

Once again I have to ask you readers to forgive me for not having too much news today.

Thursday afternoon I went home around 5:30 p.m. and as I was coming in the back door I hear the phone ringing. Running to answer it I had sad news. It was long distance from Austin. My son, Mike, was riding a bicycle from Texas University where he attends school and was hit by a car. As far as they could tell at the present time he had a separated shoulder and other injuries. He was to be operated on Friday morning. Of course he wanted his mother to come. The twin's "Uncle" Raymond, J.R. Carroll, offered to drive me down. So when you read this column I will be in Austin. Hopefully he will get along all right and I can come home today and be at work Monday. Hope so, as I have had a rough summer. Smile.

His wife's parents, the Garland Grays from Roane, were to drive down later. Nothing we can do except let them know how very much we love them.

If you'd like to send Mike a card he is in St. David's Hospital, East 32nd, Room 472, Austin, Texas.

Hope YOU have a nice Sunday and remember I Luv You.

See you in Thursday's Daily Sun.

EMHOUSE NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Stokes Armstrong were in Arlington on Tuesday night to attend a meeting for the Dairy Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Brown of Dallas spent Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. R.H. Brown.

Weekend visitor in the home of Mrs. LaBesse Spruill and Clifton Benton was their sister, Mrs. Zadabelle Shropshire, from Alvarado.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Melton from Chicasaw, Okla., visited their mother, Mrs. Maggie Melton, over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. C.B. Worley of Dallas are spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. Homer Price.

Mrs. R.H. Brown, who has been a patient at the Memorial Hospital in Corsicana, was able to return home on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Chaney visited Mr. and Mrs. Roy Crawford in Kerens on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. C.J. Armstrong spent Sunday in Canton with Mr. and Mrs. D.D. Mitchell.

Mrs. Lucille Brown was honored with a birthday party at her home on Thursday night. Others helping to share the occasion were he children and grandchildren of Corsicana.

Mr. and Mrs. Logsdon Weaver and family of Dallas spent Sunday with their parents and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stewart.

Mrs. Ina Grooms of Whitney and Mrs. Jewell Rackley of Corsicana visited friends and relatives here on Saturday.

The annual Lord's Acre Dinner will be held at the Community Center on Sunday, Oct. 8. Serving will begin at 11 a.m. with cost of $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for children.

I want to thank all of you for your phone calls and concern about my son Mike, who was hit by a car while riding home on his bike from Texas University last Thursday. He is in very good condition after surgery for a shoulder separation. Of course he suffered bruises and has some pain. But in all probability he will be released from the hospital by today. "Uncle" Raymond stayed in Austin as he is retired and I rode back home with Sue's parents, the Garland Grays of Roane.

As Mike was in the Men's Ward a woman couldn't stay with him at night so Raymond and Garland rotated shifts.

My son Pat suggested that I needed recreation and entertainment after such a scare. Smile. Even though I was tired I consented to go out for a fish dinner. We then went to Saxon Pub to hear Keacth Treadgill and his band. Many of you know Cotton Collins, one of the nation's best fiddlers and yodlers. Believe you me he hasn't lost his touch. They were all very good and played to a capacity crowd. Two of the most requested numbers were "Orange Blossom Special" and "My Blue Heaven." I was really surprised at the young fans of Country and Western music which YOU KNOW is my favorite.

Saturday night Pat took me to hear Willie Nelson at Big G's in Round Rock. Willie didn't have his regular band and two of Pat's friends got to sit in with the band. Cal Stanton was great guns on the drums and Bill Hamilton was super on bass guitar. After the show we all had a jam session. I answered MORE questions. Really amazing to me that artists know a song but not who wrote it. Willie sang "The Last Letter" for me. It was written by Rex Griffin whom Pat and Mike's father, "Uncle" Gus discovered way back yonder. I was glad I consented to go hear them. It was fun and it wouldn't have done any good to sit around and worry about Mike.

Congratulations to the Kerens Band who won a beautiful trophy in the Cotton Bowl at the State Fair in Dallas last Monday night. Mrs. Julia Jones who works at the Daily Sun is one of the proud mothers as her son, Bobby Jones, is the trumpet player.

Alton Justiss stopped me at Safeway last Monday and said it was time for me to start fishing again. He said he and his wife had been going to Lake Halbert almost every day and the bass were biting. That IS good news!

Do hope you have some good news and will write me about it soon. I'm always glad to see the mail man.

The sun will rise or tomorrow could be cloudy but remember be prepared to enjoy the day.....they're gonna get shorter and shorter.

'See you Sunday.

TP&L 'Camp Grounds' Get Heavy Use

TP&L Recreation Area

TP&L recreational facilities in Trinidad include a large dining, entertainment and sleeping facility, a swimming pool and tennis and basketball courts.

By LILLIAN BRADSHAW
Trinidad Correspondent

The new entertainment facilities recently completed on what is generally called the "camp grounds" of Texas Power and Light Co. in Trinidad are being used to the fullest extent. As a general rule, when one group leaves, another is ready and waiting to occupy the premises.

Various youth groups from over the state, church organizations, boy and girl scouts from any number of counties, a deafmute group from a Houston church, patients from the State Hospital in Terrell and employes at company-sponsored parties are among the hundreds who have availed themselves of the facilities since it's completion in May, 1971.

The complex is on the north shores of the company lake and can be reached by a private paved drive completely shaded by huge pecan trees. Public reservations must be made in advance so there will be no conflict. The compound is so designed that it may accommodate as few as 20 or more than 200 guests.

Bill Surber is company supervisor over the area, and Mrs. Alpine Holcomb is employed as food contractor. Her coworkers are Mmes. Margaret French, Kit Rayfield, Lorraine Arrington and Lillian Smith. When necessary, other personnel are called.

The huge complex, which encompasses 10,000 covered square feet and a swimming pool with the temperature controlled so that it is available for year-round use, is surrounded by paved drives and walkways. The building proper is constructed of rough cedar outside with the interior finished in tinted sheetrock and acoustic tile ceiling.

Central air and heating add to the comfort of both workers and guests, as does the recessed lighting. A sound room for piped in music is an added attraction, along with numerous outlets for microphones when special entertainment is scheduled.

The building is designed so the kitchen and entertainment areas separate the dormitories, each of which can accommodate 80 persons. The east wing is alloted to young women while the west wing is set aside for boys.

Ten showers with six rest rooms, complete with as many mirrowed laboratories, are found in each wing, along with beds and sunned mattresses. Visitors are required to bring their own bed clothing.

Accordian doors were installed to insure privacy between the kitchen and entertainment room, where draw drapes can be opened to allow a beautiful view of the wind swept lake.

The kitchen is as modern as scientific experiments have proven feasible in the last several years. An ice maker provides a constant supply of ice cubes, and a commercial dishwasher can turn out a load of sterilized dishes in one and one half minutes. All utensils, cabinets and steam tables are of stainless steel, and floors are of vinyl tile. When large parties are in attendance, two lines are formed and rapidly served to insure a still hot and tasty meal.

Mrs. Holcomb is exuberant over some of the groups who have been served. In speaking of the group from Houston, she said, "They were the sweetest bunch of kids you ever saw. While here, they worked on crafts, had devotionals, swam, played ball and hiked. Their ages ranged from 6 to 20, and just watching them made you want to mother every one."

Then there was the group from Terrell, Mrs. Holcomb said, some of whom had not seen the outside of four walls in 20 to 25 years. The 30 patients and their supervisors cooked, fished and tramped over the grounds during their three-day stay. According to Mrs. Holcomb, the outing was somewhat of an experimental test for Terrell authorities, and if the outing proved beneficial, other such excursions would be made.

Teague Passes Abandoned-Vehicle Removal Ordinance

By JIM BUSH
Golden Circle Reporter

TEAGUE — An ordinance was passed by the Teague City Council at their regular meeting Tuesday making it illegal to leave a vehicle on the streets or alley ways of Teague in excess of one week if the vehicle does not bear a current Texas registration tag and inspection sticker.

In such an event, the vehicle will be removed and the cost of the removal charged to the registered owner of the vehicle. If the charge is not paid, the vehicle will be sold to pay for the removal charge.

Anyone failing to comply with the ordinance will be subject to a fine of not less than $1 and not more than $200. Each vehicle constitutes a separate offense.

The ordinance states that unoccupied and unregistered vehicles left in streets and alley ways constitute a hazard and endangers health and welfare.

The ordinance calls removal of abandoned vehicles an emergency requiring a suspension of the rule that states an ordinance must be read at three meetings of the city council. The rule was declared suspended by the ordinance, and the ordinance was passed by a unanimous vote of the council on the first reading.

Builder Clifton Johnson appeared before the council to point out a need for improving 13th Avenue, the street on which he is planning to build several new houses.

The council explained that the city could not afford to black top the street until government help in funding such a project should become available. It was agreed, however, that the street be covered with crushed limestone rock and to have a grader "crown" the street.

A motion to have parking meters removed and to have parking places realigned at the suggestion of the Texas Highway Department was passed by the council.

Councilman H.A. Ellisor was appointed to contact Pete Henderson to ask his price for removing the parking meter standards.

A request from Texaco Service Station owners that a portion of a street bordering the station be lowered was considered, but the council decided that this would not be a feasible job for the city. The council agreed to allow the owners of the business to lower the street at their own expense if it would be properly done.

Bills were allowed paid as listed.

X-Rated Movies Protested in Fairfield

By JIM BUSH
Golden Circle Reporter

FAIRFIELD—A group of 15 Fairfield citizens, including three ministers representing three local churches, appeared before the Fairfield City Council Tuesday night to speak in opposition of movies shown at the local drive-in theater which they consider "immoral and indecent."

The result of the group's complaints was an ordinance passed by the council requiring that the screen of the drive-in be blocked from view of bordering roads. The Texas Twin is the only such theater in town, though the name of the establishment was never mentioned.

Spokesman for the alliance, which represented a larger goup of persons in the community who oppose movies such as those in question, was Rev. Thomas Gray, pastor of the First Methodist Church.

The main complaint made by the alliance was that X-rated movies could be seen by anyone passing by the theater in a car. They asked that a fence or wall be built around the theater in order to conceal the movie screen from the road. They also requested that the theater owner be given a 60-day notice, in which time the fence should be erected.

No specific length of time was set by which the theater must comply.

Another complaint made by the group was that persons under the recommended age level for certain movies were often admitted to the drive-in. The alliance indicated a desire to have something done about the situation.

Fairfield City Attorney Hugh Reed Jr. explained certain regulations governing the showing of such movies and also briefly explained film ratings and how they are made.

He said there is no effective legal remedy in Texas to prevent the showing of the types of movies the group considers offensive. He explained that before a movie can be declared "lurid," a peace officer must obtain a legal search warrant and then view the film before seizing it. A judge and jury must then concur in court that the movie should not be shown.

He explained an ordinance passed by Grand Prairie which makes it illegal to show films at drive-ins in view of cars passing by because of being a "safety hazard." A copy of the Grand Prairie ordinance is being sent to Fairfield at the request of the city attorney, and he stated that the copy should be available for inspection Wednesday. This is the ordinance on which the Fairfield action would be based.

Reed further explained that the ordinance requiring that the drive-in screen be blocked from view of the road was about the only action the council could legally and effectively take. What people pay to view of their own will is their business, he concluded, and the courts have upheld this in several cases.

In the council's general business meeting, a letter was read by City Attorney Gray which he had drafted to be sent to apparent violaters of the town's livestock ordinance. The letter advises that violaters comply with the ordinance and, if they do not, legal action will be taken by the city.

A request from a small number of residents to have water lines extended to their premises was considered by the council. It was decided that there was not sufficient money in the budget to allow this service, but if the individual desired to pay for it themselves, the city would install the pipe.

Further discussion was held on street repairs needed in the city, but action is pending more investigation into the matter.

All bills were paid as listed by a unanimous vote of the council.

Alpha Theta Iotas Hear Hobby Program

Mrs. David Campbell presented a program on hobbies for members of the Alpha Theta Iota Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi at a recent meeting held in the home of Mrs. Tom Parris.

The speaker stated that there are three types of hobbies that a person can enjoy....civic, physical and creative. She reminded members of the worthy civic organizations within the city and presented a brochure on the Corsicana YMCA where physical activities for all members of the family are offered. A display of creative articles was provided for the audience to see.

Mrs. Fred Shimonek read minutes of the last meeting following the opening exercise with the ritual repeated in unison by the members. The Beta Sigma Phi manual was reviewed and Mrs. Clarence Young presided. The closing ritual was used in adjournment.

Mrs. Tom Mitchell as cohostess assisted Mrs. Parris with refreshments following the program.

Mrs. Gary Towers was announced as the next hostess with Mrs. Larry Averitt assisting.

Unconventional Visions Assessed To Find New Energy Sources

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whisk yourself into the 21st century. Giant windmills whirl offshore. Floating energy plants rely on differences in the ocean's temperature. Overhead, dumbbell-shaped spacecraft capture the power of the sun.

So go the visions of scientists seeking to ease the nation's growing energy crisis as current, environmentally acceptable sources of energy diminish.

None of the proposals to capture the force of the winds, the tides, tropical ocean currents or solar energy may prove practical. But each possible way of obtaining energy, both conventional and unconventional by today's terms, is being assessed by scientists under Nixon administration orders to seek new sources of energy.

Directing the study is the White House Office of Science and Technology to which 11 advisory panels are to report soon.

The proposal to harness the winds envisions huge windmills located 10 or more miles off the New England and New York coasts and fixed atop 150-foot steel towers rising from stationary floating platforms or anchored directly to the seabed of the continental shelf.

The windmills, propelled by steady westerly winds that sweep over the Atlantic, produce electricity that is used to convert ocean water into oxygen and hydrogen. The hydrogen then is shipped ashore where it is combined in fuel cells with readily available oxygen in a manner that produces enough electricity to supply all of New England and New York. Fresh water is a by-product of this proposed process.

Another scheme for producing electricity proposes use of floating heat engines that are fed on one side by warm water from the Gulf Stream's surface and on the other side by near-freezing water piped upward from the seabed more than one-half mile below the surface.

The thermal gradient, or sharp temperature difference between the two sources of water in the Gulf Stream, promotes the whirling of turbines for the production of electricity.

As with the windmill proposal, the ocean-generated electricity is used to produce hydrogen gas for combination in energy-producing fuels cells ashore.

A third proposal for creating electricity envisions a giant, dumbbell-shaped unmanned spacecraft that orbits the planet at an altitude of 22,000 miles and remains above the same spot on the rotating earth.

The satellite, equipped with a 25-square-mile array of solar cells, captures the intense sunlight at that altitude, transforms it into a strong electric current and converts the current to radar-like waves that are beamed to earth. A 36-square-mile ground antenna picks up the radar beams which are converted back into enough electricity to supply large metropolitan areas.

Still another proposal calls for solar farms that tap energy from the sun in such clear-weather states as Arizona and New Mexico.

The farms consist of thousands of acres of arid land covered with an array of hollow tubes coated with a special chemical film and filled with a heat exchange fluid. The tubes absorb the sun's radiation and retain most of it; the heat exchange fluid converts the radiation to heat which is used to produce electricity-generating steam.

There are these other possibilities for obtaining electricity:

—Along coastal areas of the Bay of Fundy between Maine and Nova Scotia and along the coast of Alaska, huge dams capture high-tide waters and release them at low tide.

The out-rushing water from these geographic points, which have the highest tides in North America, churn giant waterwheels that activate electricity-generating turbines.

—Still more electricity is generated at geothermal power plants placed at strategic points nationwide.

In these plants, cold water is pumped downward three miles or more into the earth's crust through pipes that reach prefractured areas within layers of intensely hot rocks. The water, picking up the heat, is pumped back to the surface where it becomes steam as it emerges. The steam generates the electricity.

However exotic these proposals for producing electricity, they have strong backers among some private and federal researchers and administration scientists say they must be explored on the chance one or another could help relieve energy shortages in some part of the nation.

While White House scientists concede the proposals likely would not be practical before the next century, they say it is always possible research breakthroughs could be achieved before the year 2,000.

The scientists list these two other sources of unconventional energy for possible earlier and relatively wide application:

—Expanded use in the South of roof-top waterheaters fueled by solar power and, in those same sunny states, further use of solar stills for making fresh water from salty, brackish water.

—Generating electricity from two forms of geothermal energy other than the so-called hot rock-type that is deeply locked within the earth.

These more accessible, though geographically less widespread, resources of geothermal energy include steam-yielding geysers and subterranean hot-water systems whose waters can be made to flash to steam if brought to the surface.

The geyser fields of Northern California are the major known domestic source of geyser energy. Power plants of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. began generating electricity at the field in 1960. The conibined output is still modest, much less than a single 1000 megawatt a conventional power plant produces.

But scientists say there's a potential for further extensive tapping of this resource.

The more widespread hot water systems are believed to exist nationwide, most abundantly in the 11 western states and Alaska and within special subsurface formations along the Gulf of Mexico from the Rio Grande to eastern Mississippi.

While these systems have been tapped for home heating in a few locations, such as towns in Idaho and Oregon, none so far has been tapped as a source of electricity.

The government's National Science Foundation is actively supporting research in this field.

NSF scientists also are assessing the sea-going windmill concept, the proposal of Dr. William E. Heronemuu, a professor of civil engineering at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst.

Heronemus envisions placing "barrages of wind stations across the prevailing westerlies in the Gulf of Maine-Georges Bank area of the continental shelf."

From Georges Bank to Nantucket and on down to the New York Shoals, about 80 windmill towers would be deployed, each ter of a mile apart in a circle at least 150 feet high, to catch about 3½ miles in diameter. the wind.

The girder-like, kite-shaped towers each would support three torpedo-shaped equipped with big blades.

Towers would be arranged in widely separated units of four towers each, with individual towers deployed about a quar-

AT&T Antitrust Suit Charges Monopoly of Phone Equipment

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)— Five companies have filed a $25 million antitrust suit against the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and its subsidiaries throughout the nation, claiming they have monopolized the telephone equipment business.

The current situation, contends the president of the plaintiff firms, is "like the local electric company controlling all of the light bulbs."

The suit was filed in federal court here Tuesday by five independent companies which furnish telephone station equipment that can be connected to Bell System lines.

They seek a court order requiring AT&T to get out of the station equipment business, which involves telephone equipment located on the premises of the user, ranging from telephone instruments to switchboards.

Dean Warfield, president of San Antonio Telephone Co., Inc., one of the plaintiffs, told newsmen that a favorable decision would enable the independent firms to provide less costly service to residential customers and businesses.

The defendants include the parent firm of AT&T and all its Bell System companies in the nation, as well as the Western Electric Company—Bell's equipment manufacturing subsidiary.

The plaintiffs claim the Bell System companies have conspired to maintain a monopoly by a series of alledgedly unfair and discriminatory business practices.

The suit alleges these have included discrimination in service and treatment given customers who buy or lease their own equipment from the plaintiffs.

Said Warfield in a statement: "It is like the local electric company controlling all of the light bulbs and lighting fixtures. To use their services, you would be forced to buy or rent their equipment."

The suit was filed by Northeastern Telephone Co., Milford, Conn.; Gulf States Telephone Co., Inc., Mobile, Ala.; Gulf Telephone & Electronics, Inc., Houston; El Paso, Tex., Telephone Co., and the San Antonio Telephone Co.

It was filed here for several reasons, spokesmen said, including the fact that the San Antonio firm is headquartered here.

The suit seeks damages in excess of $25 million and a judgment triple that if the defendants are found liable by the court.

Lawyers said the case was the first of its kind, in that it was filed as a class action suit on behalf of all independent telephone contract companies.

Among the allegations is a claim involving devices required to connect non-Bell equipment to the telephone network. The suit claims the devices have been "purposely designed...so as to use electrical power from the customer's premises rather than using available power from the telephone network."

A power failure means such customers are "without telephone service, unlike customers using defendants' station equipment," the suit said.

According to the suit, private companies were prohibited before 1968 from furnishing station equipment to Bell System customers.

A Federal Communications Commission order changed that on Nov. 1, 1968, the suit said, but it claims that since then, the Bell System companies have conspired to maintain their monopoly.

The equipment in question includes telephone instruments, switching equipment, private branch exchange PBX equipment, switchboards and key phones.

Hobby Says State Faces No Financial Crisis

HOUSTON (AP) — Bill Hobby, the Democratic candidate for Texas lieutenant governor, told oilmen here Tuesday he doesn't believe the state will be facing a financial crisis in the next few years.

Hobby, who has no Republican opposition in next month's general election, spoke at the concluding session of the 53rd meeting of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association.

POW's Wife Seeks Divorce

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The wife of the first American pilot shot down in Vietnam and captured by the North Vietnamese is seeking a divorce, the family and attorneys confirmed Tuesday.

Navy Lt. Everett Alvarez, 34, described by the Defense Department as the longest held American POW in history, was married only two months before being sent to Vietnam.

Tangee Alvarez, 32, has not seen her husband for more than eight years. He was shot down Aug. 15, 1964 over the Gulf of Tonkin.

Mrs. Alvarez originally filed for dissolution of marriage in Alameda Superior Court in July, 1970, court records showed. However, his sister, Delia, of Santa Clara, Calif., said the matter was not made public for many reasons and because of legal complications the divorce has not been completed.

"We wanted to get the word to my brother in a letter, before he heard about it from the press or someone else," Delia Alvarez said. She said she and Alvarez' parents notified him in a letter and it took about six months for him to acknowledge it by return mail.

Tangee Alvarez was not available for comment. Her attorney, Myron Tower, said complications about how Alvarez was to be notified legally of the dissolution petition have delayed court hearings in the matter.

Purcell Urges Report On Russian Wheat Shipment to Hanoi

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP)— An apparent Russian shipment of wheat flour to North Vietnam requires immediate investigation, U.S. Rep. Graham Purcell, D-Tex., said here Tuesday.

The Wichita Falls congressman told newsmen that western sources have reported seven or eight Soviet ships are now in Chinese harbors unloading wheat flour destined for North Vietnam, and he wants the State Department to make a full disclosure without delay.

Purcell said he telegraphed Secretary of State William Rogers saying:

"I am alarmed and greatly disturbed at reports carried in Monday's Chicago Daily News that the USSR is now shipping wheat flour to North Vietnam through Chinese ports and I call upon you to make full and immediate disclosure to the American people of any such information at your disposal."

Lions See Film

David Hull, scoutmaster of Troop 240, gave to the Lions Club Friday a color film presentation of the 11 Corsicana Boy Scouts who this year hiked to Mt. Philmont in New Mexico.

The 10-day hike took the boys from an elevation of 7,000 feet to 12,500 feet and a distance of 75 miles, according to Hull.

The scouts carried all their equipment on their backs and camped at various sites during the hike.

It was the first time Corsicana Boy Scouts as a unit had gone to Mt. Philmont, Hull said.

Lions will meet at 5 p.m. Tuesday at Community Park to kick off the Lions Annual light bulb sale.

"Lions Good Citizens" of the month are Corsicana High school students Rosemary Holy and Mike Montfort.

Make Fresh Cranberry Treats for Halloween

October is fresh cranberry month as well as the month we celebrate Halloween. The traditional pumpkin gets a bright lift from the cranberry red punch in these treats for tricksters served warm to brighten the spirits. Candied fresh cranberries and Halloween cookies complete the goodies.

WITCHES' BREW
(Serves 6-8)

- 4 cups (1 quart) Ocean Spray cranberry-apple drink
- ¼ teaspoon ground cloves
- ½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 4 cups (1 quart) ginger ale

Combine all ingredients and mix until blended. Pour into tall glasses and add ice cubes and orange slices. If desired, combine all ingredients in a saucepan and heat until mixture just starts to bubble. Serve hot or cold in mugs with a cinnamon stick and a piece of orange peel.

CINNAMON CANDIED CRANBERRIES
(Makes 4 cups)

- 2 cups light corn syrup
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 pound Ocean Spray fresh cranberries

Pour corn syrup into saucepan. Add cinnamon and stir. Place candy thermometer in syrup. Bring to a boil. Boil until syrup when dropped into very cold water forms a hard ball that is still plastic (250°F on candy thermometer). Remove from heat. Stir in 1 pound of plump, red, round cranberries. Line cookie sheet with foil. Spread cranberries over foil so that the cranberries are separated. Cool.

CRANBERRY HALLOWEEN COOKIES
(Makes 4 dozen)

- ⅔ cup vegetable shortening
- ½ cup peanut butter
- 1⅓ cups firmly packed brown sugar
- 2 eggs
- ½ cup milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2½ cups all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 cup chopped peanuts
- 1 cup fresh cranberry sauce (made according to directions on box or bag of Ocean Spray fresh cranberries.)

Mix shortening, peanut butter, sugar and eggs until well blended and creamy. Stir in milk and vanilla. Stir in flour, baking powder and peanuts. Drop dough by tablespoonfuls onto greased cookie sheets. With the back of a wet teaspoon make a depression in the center of the cookie. Fill hole with heaping teaspoonful cranberry sauce. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (375°F.) for 10 to 12 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool on a rack.

FRESH CRANBERRY BREADS HERALD AUTUMN'S ARRIVAL

There's a bumper crop of fresh red cranberries in the local markets now begging to be used in luscious breads and coffee cakes. These early-in-the-season berries are at peak quality and priced to fit tight budgets.

CRANBERRY BREAKFAST RING
(Makes 1 ring)

- ½ cup lukewarm water
- 1 package active dry yeast
- 1 egg
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 2½ cups biscuit mix
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
- ½ cup sugar
- ½ cup chopped nuts
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 2 cups Ocean Spray fresh cranberries, chopped coarsely
- 1 cup confectioners' sugar
- 3 tablespoons Ocean Spray cranberry juice cocktail

Dissolve yeast in warm water. Stir in egg, sugar and butter. Beat in biscuit mix until stiff dough is formed. Turn out dough on a floured board and knead until dough is smooth. Roll into a rectangle 15x10 inches. Brush with melted butter, sprinkle with sugar, nuts, cinnamon and cranberries. Roll up, starting at the 15-inch side, like a jelly roll. Bring ends together to form a ring and seal with water. Place on a greased cookie sheet. Cut with a scissors at 1-inch intervals, cutting ¾ of the way across. Turn each section on its side. Let rise in a warm place until double in bulk. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (375°F.) for 20 to 25 minutes or until brown. Mix confectioners' sugar with enough cranberry juice cocktail to make the consistency of heavy cream. Spoon over ring while still warm.

CRANBERRY WALNUT BREAD
(Makes 1 8½" x4½"x2¾" loaf)

- 2 cups unsifted flour, mixed with a fork before measuring.
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup Ocean Spray fresh cranberries rinsed, drained, and coarsely chopped
- 1 cup of walnuts, coarsely chopped
- 1 egg
- ¾ cup milk
- ¼ cup butter, melted
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

In a large mixing bowl, stir the flour, baking powder and salt together with a fork. Stir in sugar. Mix in cranberries and nuts. In a small bowl, beat egg slightly with a fork. Stir in milk, butter and vanilla. Add milk mixture to flour mixture and stir lightly just until flour is dampened. Turn into a greased 8½" x 4½" x 2¾" (1½ quart) loaf pan. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 55 to 60 minutes or until browned and cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean. Cool on wire rack 10 minutes. Loosen around edges with a knife and turn out of pan. Turn right side up. Cool completely on wire rack. Wrap well and store several hours before cutting

Of 'Honor System' Eggs and Potato Soup

By DOROTHY C. POTTS
Special Correspondent

"We're just a small operation," Charles Davenport told me as I went through his Caged Egg Farm recently.

Eleven to twelve thousand hens lay 542 dozen eggs a day, and Davenport markets these at the "honor system" store at his home in Italy, at his Waxahachie "Hen's Nest," and through wholesale outlets in Dallas, Midlothian, and Milford.

Davenport worked for 28 years as an engineer for Corn Products Co., international food manufacturers, of Dallas until he retired in August of 1971 to spend his full time in the egg and hen business.

Twenty years ago he began his egg farm as a part-time occupation. Now he's a full-time egg farmer.

At his home store, Davenport uses the honor system. People pick the amount and size eggs and-or number of hens they want, write their names on a blackboard along with the number of eggs and hens they bought, and then put their money in a slot. The customer is often the only person in the store, since there is no sales clerk.

Davenport's honor system store accounts for approximately half of his daily sales, and he says that he rarely gets a dishonest customer. The "Hen's Nest" in Waxahachie has a man on duty to help customers, Davenport added.

THE DAY WAS DARK AND STILL. That rain was coming was a foregone conclusion. Thunder rumbled faintly in the distance. Everything was expectant before the oncoming storm. Fall was coming in Sun Country. Beautiful. Tired of the unusual September heat, everyone seemed ready for a new season, a change.

I had a day with several things in it that needed doing. I was tired of doing. The darkness of the day urged me toward leaving my chores until another, more typical day. I succumbed to the day's urge.

I had the day to myself. Potato soup seemed just the thing for a solitary lunch—with croutons sprinkled on at the last minute. I set the potatoes to simmering, noticed that the rain was beginning, and settled back with my library book, Another Part of the House by Winston M. Estes. A sad book, but good—and funny, too, in places.

I sat in the living room and listened to one of the great live oaks in the front yard shed its acrons onto the roof of the house. Acorns thumped and rolled with some regularity. Occasionally a jay screamed. The rain had stopped by this time. Everything was quiet except for the acorns and a jay or two.

After the potato soup, I crawled into bed and took a long nap, reading awhile before I fell asleep.

Everyone needs a day like this sometimes. It makes it possible for life to be savored, touched. The mind needs to be put into neutral occasionally, allowed to coast, to graze, to wander. A good feeling—to have one's mind temporarily off the leash—free to bound about and bring back ideas and incidents not thought of or remembered for weeks, months, maybe years.

Occasional solitude seems to me to be a necessity. Quiet is healing. I had enjoyed both this day. Soon the noise would start, and I would be alone no longer.

This is good, too, I thought, as everyone began to drift in, discussing the day. Solitude and quiet need to be framed in activity and noise or there's no point to them. Life needs its balances.

Egg Man

Supreme Knight Seeks Columbus-Like Virtues In Modern World Crisis

Dr. John W. McDevitt, supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus, set the tone for the observance of Columbus Day, 1972, today by recalling the origin of the celebration and relating ti to some of the major events and problems faced today by the people who make up the land Columbus discovered.

Dr. JOHN W. MCDEVITT
Supreme Knight of Knights of Columbus

Relating Columbus' calm handling of a near-mutinous situation aboard his ships just prior to the sighting of land in the year 1492 to today's political situation in the United States, McDevitt said, "Legislators and all men in public service face the same kind of rumblings and discontent today as confronted Columbus when a mutiny-minded crew demanded that he give up his quest for the Indies.

"The question is: Will our lawmakers and public administrators have the fortitude to hold to their principles as did Columbus?"

Speaking on behalf of the multi-million-member Catholic fraternal body named in honor of the discoverer of America, McDevitt continued: "In Aristole's view all public servants should be dedicated to and experienced in the exercise of what he called four political virtues.

"They are justice, temperance, courage and prudence. Justice is truth in action. Temperance keeps a rein on passions. Courage implements the convictions of conscience. Prudence dictates the choice of the better course of action."

The Supreme Knight concluded his special Columbus Day address by calling for men who hold public responsibility to stand firm against the whims of pressure groups and to take the lead of the discoverer of America in their resolve to "keep our country on its charted course".

Chatfield's Valley Farm Leading Cattle Producer

By JIM BUSH
Golden Circle Reporter

The Valley Farm northeast of Chatfield along the banks of the Trinity River is one of the outstanding beef cattle producers of the area. The ranch, owned and operated by W.D. Dickson and Jim Bain, is managed to insure top quality and top profits on the beef markets.

A trip to the Valley Farm Friday morning with county livestock specialist Ed Fugger revealed hundreds of rolling acres of good grazing and, naturally, hundreds of fat steers and sleek heifers. One hundred and sixty of those heifers were being loaded Friday morning onto double decker trucks headed for feed lots on the high plains of the Texas Panhandle.

Each of the heifers has gone through a carefully planned program of feeding and health care. This program is known as "pre-conditioning" by those in the business. Before the cattle are placed on a pasture, they are vaccinated for "Blacklet" and "Lepto" and also wormed, dehorned and treated for grubs.

Then, two to three weeks prior to shipping, and after the animals have been at pasture for five months, they are vaccinated for "IBR, BVD, PI-3 and 4-Way Blackleg." They are then placed in an area where they learn to eat from troughs for two weeks. Here, the heifers are fed grain and solid mixtures.

The purpose of the vaccinations is to build up immunities in the herd before they're subjected to the stress of shipping and the new environment of the feed lot.

Dickson and Bain raise all their calves right on the farm. The calves are of mixed breeding with heavy traces of Angus and some Braham.

After the cattle reach the proper age and size, they are shipped to the Swisher County Feed Lot in the Panhandle. Dickson and Bain pay for the custom feeding the cattle receive at the lot.

After the animals have been fattened at the feed lot, they are shipped directly to a packer in the area, concluding a planned feeding and health program which began months in advance.

The cattle which were shipped from the Valley Farm last Friday morning were put on pasture June 13. They were taken off the pasture Sept. 12 and placed on the trough feeds. The average weight of the heifers before they were placed on pasture was 402. Just before shipping, the herd was weighed again and showed an average weight of 489 pounds per head or an average gain of about 87 pounds per head.

Steers were weaned as well as the heifers, but they are being allowed more time in the pasture to gain more weight before the next shipment. The steers have also been given a number of growth hormone implants to further stimulate a rapid weight increase.

The 141 steers now on pasture at the Valley Farm will be shipped to the feed lot in another month or month and a half. The chain of pasturing, feeding, health care and shipping will then start anew.

TEA Advises Hair Controversy Should Be Decided by Court

By ROB MECKEL
Sun Staff Writer

The Corsicana Independent School District Superintendent of Schools and the attorney representing the plaintiffs in a suit against the school district concerning a dress code prohibiting long hair on male students both said today they have received letters from the legal counselor for the Texas Education Agency in Austin advising them that the decision on the long hair issue should be decided by the courts.

(Daily Sun Editorial on hair issue and The Sun's role, 4-A.)

Corsicana ISD Supt. Joe Seale said today the letter was written by Chester E. Ollison, legal counselor for the TEA. As the case now stands, he said, a hearing is set for 11 a.m. Thursday in 13th District Court to determine whether a temporary injunction will be issued which will prevent the CISD board of trustees from enforcing the hair length rule.

A visiting judge, District Judge Steve Latham of Hillsboro will preside in the Thursday hearing. The case is styled Mrs. Leslie K. Skews as next friend of Kevin Skews and Mrs. J.T. Burkes, as next friend of Michael Burkes, vs. Board of Trustees of Corsicana Independent School District.

Attorney for plaintiffs, William J. McKie, said today that he will be assisted in the case by attorney William Kugle Jr. of the Kugle and Douglas law firm of Athens. Kugle represented students in a similar hair case at Tyler Junior College in which the court ruled that the college could not regulate the length of a student's hair.

The letter sent by Ollison was written in reply to a letter sent to the TEA by McKie. Ollison gives the opinion that, "We (TEA) would agree that a proceeding which challenges only the validity of a school district policy or regulation involves simply a pure question of law which unquestionably may be resolved by the courts without the necessity of first exhausting the educational channels," wrote Ollison.

Holmes, Fullwood, Vacek Attend State CAA Parley

The Texas Association of Community Action Agencies met in Dallas at the Baker Hotel during the past week.

Ed Holmes, treasurer of the Navarro County Action Committee attended the Wednesday afternoon General Session. Speakers for this session included Dr. Raynell Parkins, professor of architecture at the University of Texas, who pointed out the fact that government at all levels is developing inter-regional planning processes that include by necessity inter-disciplinary concepts such as ecology, sociology, environment, science, etc.

Jeannette Watson, Director of the State Office of Early Childhood Development discussed recent state legislation, coordination with Title VI of the Social Security Act, and renewed state emphasis on comprehensive early childhood programs that especially strengthen the family base.

Jerry Chapman, director of programs at the Department of Welfare, discussed the implementation of the statewide food stamp program. He emphasized the economic factors and the beneficial aspects of this program to local economic activities. Recent study showed that each dollar of Food Stamps generated another $1.68 in other new business activity in the community.

Mary Ann Harvey of Texas OEO introduced the proposal for Selected Economic Development in rural areas of Texas, a joint effort with the Texas Industrial Commission.

Corsicana Grad In Baylor Play

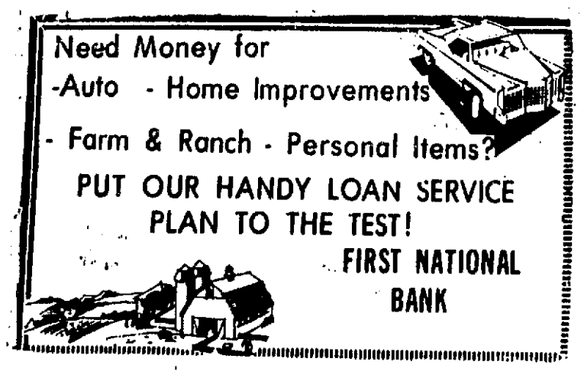

WACO — A Baylor University student from Corsicana has been chosen for the cast of Baylor Theater's next production, "The Diary of a Scoundrel."

Pressley Barnes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grady C. Barnes of Route 1, will play one of the serfs in the Alexander Ostrovsky play.

Barnes, a 1969 graduate of Corsicana High School, is a junior drama major at Baylor.

The play will open Oct. 12 and continue Oct. 13, 14 and 16 through 21. All performances will be in Baylor Theater on the Waco campus.

"The Diary of a Scoundrel" is the story of an indigent Russian youth who climbs to social esteem by underhanded methods. He progresses by wit, guile and rhetoric, pitting one person against another. He is tripped up by his uncle's wife, but in the showdown he is more than a match for his adversaries.

Teague UF Drive Passes Half of Goal

TEAGUE—The Teague United Fund Drive is proceeding at a rapid rate, and by Friday the fund had passed the halfway mark of a $4,000 goal. Rev. Charles Danheim, General Chairman of the UF drive in Teague, reported that $2,100 had been turned in at that time.

Over 70 persons are volunteering for this year's fund drive.

Team captains of the drive are Mrs. D.L. Sheppard, Mrs. F.W. Solley, A.M. Johnson, Craig McSpadden, Mrs. Tim Brown, Mrs. Jackie Millender, Charles Uselton and Mrs. Beasley Terry, publicity chairman of the Teague solictors.

The Teague drive began Sept. 25 and will continue for several more days. The house-to-house campaign began Oct. 2.

Craig McSpadden, coordinator of the downtown drive, reported a very good response from local merchants. Thursday, with just half the downtown drive completed, he reported $1,156 had been collected. Over $800 had been collected from Teague residents at that time through the door-to-door canvass.

Rev. Danheim, minister of the First Methodist Church in Teague, said he is very pleased at the response United Fund is getting from the people of the area.

More than 300 person attended the "Senior Citizens Handicraft Fair" Saturday at the Navarro Mall Shopping Center.

"Our fair has been a smashing success. Before we opened at 9:30 a.m., approximately 50 persons were waiting for the exhibits to be placed on view.," said Mrs. Mildred Jennings, Mel Haven Convalescent Home administrator.

Richland To Get Direct Dialing Service

Direct Distance Dialing will be a reality for Richland customers after Oct. 11, according to Texas Telephone Company Business Manager Hubert Reynolds.

Reynolds said telephone company engineers and technicians are conducting final tests of the DDD equipment.

DDD instruction booklets have been mailed to each customer. Anyone not receiving his by Oct. 11 should contact the telephone business office at Enterprise 6-2538.

"We know our customers will enjoy the speed of Direct Distance Dialing," said Reynolds, "and we're pleased that this service is being added here."
